PREFACE.

CLASSMATES:

The Eighth Report of the Secretary is herewith submitted to you. I venture to hope that the perusal of it may afford as much pleasure to you as the preparation has to me.

I am quite sure that it will not lack interested and appreciative readers. We have grown more closely united of late years, and consequently, as I think, more inclined to spend a quiet hour with the Report. The last reunion brought out a fraternal spirit that was good to see. Our men have never been wanting in class spirit, but the degree to which it was developed last June was as satisfactory as it was unexpected.

The frontispiece of our last Report was the class window in Memorial Hall. This Report shows the class gate and a gift of over sixty-one thousand dollars to the college for the Teachers' Endowment Fund. It would not be difficult to trace the connection between these offerings of the class and the growth in loyalty to the class and in mutual esteem among the members, of which I have spoken. Such common interests strengthen the ties that bind us together, and sweeten the memories of our college days.

The thirtieth reunion was an ideal one. On the Sunday before Commencement a considerable part of the class attended a special service in Trinity Church, at which the sermon was by Kidner and Phelps sang a solo. On Monday Warren gave a luncheon at the "Wharf Rats" on India Wharf, which was followed by a trip down the harbor. In the evening Norcross gave a collation at the University Club, from which the class proceeded to the "Pop" concert at Symphony Hall as the guests of Comee. Tuesday we took automobiles on a trip through the Park System to the Country Club, where we were entertained by Prince. From there, we went to Dedham, where we called on Warren and Richardson, and saw a game of polo in which Warren took part. The class dinner at the Tavern Club on Tuesday evening closed the program. The whole was planned at a meeting of the Class Committee and Secretary and a Special Committee appointed by them, consisting of Comee, Kidner, Shaw, Prince, and Van Duzer.

As every one knows who attended, we owe to our classmate Comee, the Chairman of the special committee, much of the success of the reunion. His untiring energy, careful forethought, and boundless good-nature made the whole gathering a success from the start.

It will interest the Class to learn that at the Harvard Club in New York, a bed-room (No. 19) furnished by our classmate F. R. Appleton, is called the "'75 Room," and on the wall is hung a framed picture of the Class Gate, as a transmittendum.

Our Report this year undertakes to say something of each member of the class. Such a result has been made possible by the assiduous labor of our classmate Norcross. He has not only rendered to the Secretary the greatest assistance in the preparation of this Report, but has put us all under obligation to him for his thorough and painstaking search for facts in relation to all the members of the class.

WARREN A. REED,
Class Secretary.

CLASS OF 1875.

*ALPHEUS BROWN ALGER. Son of Edwin Alden and Amanda Malvina (Buswell) Alger, born at Lowell, Mass., Oct. 8, 1854. Fitted for college at Lowell High School.

After leaving college, he studied law in the office of the late Josiah G. Abbott, of Boston, was admitted to the bar in June, 1877, and practised law in Boston until his death.

He was a member of the Democratic State Committee from 1884 to 1890, and its Secretary from 1886 to 1890. He was a member of the Cambridge Board of Aldermen in 1884, and in 1886 and 1887 was Senator from the Third Middlesex District. While in the Senate, he creditably served on several very important committees. He was an earnest advocate of such measures as the Weekly Payment bill, Personal Liability bill, State Board of Arbitration bill, making Labor Day a legal holiday, and the abolition of the poll-tax as a prerequisite to voting. In 1891 and 1892 Alger was Mayor of Cambridge. He was a member of the Free Masons, of the Odd Fellows, of the Knights of Pythias and several social clubs.

Alger was never married, but after graduation made his home with his sisters.

He died at his home on Mt. Vernon Street, North Cambridge, May 3, 1895, of rheumatic fever, after an illness of about three weeks.

FRANCIS RANDALL APPLETON. Son of Daniel Fuller and Julia (Randall) Appleton, born in New York, Aug. 5, 1854. Fitted for college at Anthon Grammar School in New York City, and Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. Received degree of LL.B. at Columbia Law School, and was admitted to New York bar in May, 1877. Practised law in New York until 1883, and since then has been a partner in the firm of Robbins & Appleton, merchants, 21 Maiden Lane, New York. Resides in New York during the winter and at Ipswich, Mass., during the summer months.

Elected an Overseer of the College at Commencement, 1903.

Married at Lenox, Mass., Oct. 7, 1884, to Fanny Lanier. Has five children: Francis Randall, born in Lenox, July 9, 1885, in class of 1907 at Harvard; Charles Lanier, born in New York, Sept. 25, 1886, in class of 1908 at Harvard; Ruth, born in New York, Jan. 10, 1891; Alice, born in New York, Jan. 8, 1894; James, born in New York, March 6, 1899.

*GEORGE SWETT APPLETON. Son of George Swett and Caroline (Osgood) Appleton, born in New York City, Nov. 5, 1854. Fitted for college at St. John's School, Sing Sing, N.Y. While in college, he was a member of the Institute of 1770 and Hasty Pudding Club.

After leaving college, travelled in Europe, and on his return entered the publishing business with D. Appleton & Co. in New York. Died Jan. 16, 1886, in New York City.

JOHN HENRY APPLETON. Son of Charles Thomas Pratt and Sarah Jane (Merrill) Appleton, born at Somerville, Mass., April 22, 1853. Graduated at English High School, Boston, in 1870, and received private instruction for college.

Received degree of LL.B. at Harvard Law School in 1877, and A.M. in 1878. Admitted to the bar in July, 1878, in Boston, where he is still practising law. Resides at 59 Marion Street, Brookline.

Married at Cambridge, March 30, 1880, to Dora Eliza Shearer, who died in Cambridge, June 6, 1886. Nov. 9, 1898, married to Helen Hathaway Nye, of Somerville, Mass. Ethel Dora was born in Cambridge, Dec. 5, 1881, (Radcliffe 1902), married at Cambridge, Oct. 11, 1905, to George Lyman Dow.

GORHAM BACON. Son of Daniel Gorham and Mary Dwight (Flint) Bacon, born in New York City, Oct. 13, 1855. Received degree of M.D. Feb. 28, 1878, at Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York City. For eighteen months from Oct. 1, 1877, was Assistant in Bellevue Hospital; in 1879-80 studied in Europe, and upon his return was appointed Assistant Demonstrator of Anatomy at Bellevue Hospital Medical College. In December, 1880, was appointed Assistant Surgeon, and February, 1882, Surgeon of the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary. Has practised in New York City, giving special attention to diseases of the ear, and during three winters lectured on Otology to graduates in medicine at the school connected with the Infirmary. Elected a Fellow of the New York Academy of Medicine, June 1, 1882, and is a member of several medical societies. From June, 1885, until the spring of 1886 was Instructor of Otology at the New York Polyclinic. In February, 1886, was elected a delegate from the New York Academy of Medicine to the State Medical Society for three years; and in May, 1886, was appointed Assistant in the Aural Department of the Vanderbilt clinic of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Appointed Consulting Aural Surgeon to the New York Orthopædic Hospital and Dispensary in December, 1888, and elected President of the American Otological Society, July, 1890. Received the appointment, in the summer of 1897, as Professor of Otology in the New York University Medical College, which he resigned in 1898 to accept the position of Professor of Otology in the Cornell University Medical College, which was opened in New York at that time. He was President of the New York Otological Society in 1898, and Consulting Otologist to the Hospital for Scarlet Fever and Diphtheria Patients.

In the spring of 1905 he was offered the position of Professor of Otology at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, the Medical Department of Columbia University, and resigned from Cornell in order to accept this position; was also appointed Consulting Otologist to the Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled during the past year. He has contributed numerous papers on diseases of the ear to medical journals, and in 1898 published a "Manual of Otology" for the use of students, which has run through three editions.

Married at New York, Nov. 17, 1881, to Bessie Simpkins. Children: Mabel Simpkins, born Oct. 19, 1882; Ruth Sears, born Jan. 26, 1884; Bessie Gorham, born Sept. 4, 1891,—all in New York.

JONAS EDWARD BACON. Son of John and Mary (Johnson) Bacon, born in Woburn, Mass., Oct. 25, 1853. Fitted for college at Woburn High School. After graduation taught school for one year at Foxborough, Mass., studied for two years at Yale Theological Seminary, New Haven, and for two years at Andover Theological Seminary, graduating in class of 1879, and taking a post-graduate course. Ordained in ministry and installed as pastor of South Chicago Congregational Church in 1881, where his pastorate still continues. A new church, 100 by 65, of brick and stone, has been built, with departments for sociological work among workingmen and their families, medical dispensary, reading-room, savings-bank, sewing classes, etc.,—a church opened every day and evening for all kinds of practical religious work. In 1884-85 travelled in Europe, Egypt, and Palestine.

Married at Plymouth, N.H., June 26, 1884, to Carrie E. Hall, who died at South Chicago, March 4, 1902. "She proved herself a most devoted wife and consecrated church worker for eighteen years, when a stroke of apoplexy took her away very suddenly. A memorial tower has been erected at the church, and in this tower the pastor now has his home, writing these words in the study which is the upper room. The pastor expects to remain here as long as he lives."

VINCENT YARDLEY BOWDITCH. Son of Henry Ingersoll and Olivia (Yardley) Bowditch, born at Weston, Mass., July 7, 1852. Fitted for college at Mr. E. S. Dixwell's private school in Boston.

Received degree of M.D. at Harvard Medical School in 1879, after one year's service as Medical House Officer at Massachusetts General Hospital. Studied abroad until September, 1881, and since has practised in Boston.

Has held the position of Attending Physician to the Boston City Hospital, but, owing to pressure of work in other directions, was obliged four years ago to resign position there, and also at the Harvard Medical School. Has been appointed Consulting Physician to the City Hospital, to the New England Hospital for Women and Children, and to the Carney Hospital, but has devoted his chief energies to developing the work at the Sharon Sanatorium for Pulmonary Diseases, a charitable institution for women, and at the State Sanatorium for Tuberculosis at Rutland, Mass., where he has held the position of Attending Physician since the institution was opened in October, 1898. In both of these institutions his work has been chiefly devoted to showing that many people, who are unable for any reason to live in more salubrious climates, can regain their health by proper methods of life even in our harsh, changeable New England climate, at no great distance from the sea and at a comparatively low altitude. His private practice in Boston is chiefly devoted to diseases of the chest.

In 1903 published "The Life and Correspondence of Henry Ingersoll Bowditch."

LEBARON RUSSELL BRIGGS. Son of Rev. George Ware and Lucia Jane (Russell) Briggs, born at Salem, Mass., Dec. 11, 1855. Fitted for college at Cambridge High School.

Has written numerous law articles and newspaper articles. Has been in ill-health for some years.

* BENJAMIN ROBBINS CURTIS. Son of Benjamin Robbins and Anna Wroe Scollay (Curtis) Curtis, born at Pittsfield, Mass., June 15, 1855. At this time his father was one of the Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, and a few winters of his very early life our classmate passed in Washington and his summers at Pittsfield. His father resigned his judicial office in 1857, and returned to the bar, having his office in Boston; and thus the son received his early education at schools in Boston. At the age of twelve he was sent to St. Paul's School at Concord, N.H., of which then, as now, the principal was the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Coit. He remained at St. Paul's until he entered Harvard in June, 1871.

While in college, he was a member of the Hasty Pudding Club and at one time its Secretary, a member of the A. D. Club and the O. K. Society, was editor of the Harvard Advocate, and was during his Senior year President of the Harvard Athletic Association.

Immediately after graduation he started with Fiske on a journey around the world, visiting Japan, China (including Peking and the Great Wall), Singapore, Java, Ceylon, India, and Egypt, and ending with a hasty look at Europe. This trip lasted nearly a year, and on his return he revised his diary written on his journey, and published it under the title of "Downings around the Circle."

After spending a year at the Harvard Law School, he finished his study for the bar in the office of Albert Mason, Esq., in Plymouth, where he was admitted to the bar in 1878. He practised law in Boston, in partnership with Judge Mason and Arthur Lord under the firm name of Mason, Lord & Curtis, until the partnership was dissolved by the appointment of Judge Mason to the Superior Court in 1882, after which Curtis continued his law practice without a partner.

He was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States in 1883. In 1881 he was appointed lecturer at the Boston Law School on the "Courts of the United States." In 1889 he was appointed by Governor Robinson an Associate Justice of the Municipal Court of the City of Boston, which office he held at his death.

Besides writing the story of his trip around the world, in 1879 he edited the life and writings of his father, B. R. Curtis; and in the next year, in connection with Hon. George Ticknor Curtis, of New York, his father's lectures, delivered at the Harvard Law School, on the Jurisdiction, Practice, and Peculiar Jurisprudence of the Courts of the United States; and, in 1883, a volume of Myer's Federal Decisions, title "Courts."

Curtis had taken a great interest in the new Suffolk court-house, and was able to take a part in the opening exercises of the Municipal Court, in the new building, Jan. 21, 1891; but, as the justices hold the different sessions of the court in rotation, and as his duties assigned him to those sessions still held in the old court-house, he never sat as justice in the new building except on that day. The week of his illness was intended to be his first week of service there.

He died at his home, 34 Newbury Street, Boston, of pneumonia, on Sunday, Jan. 25, 1891. He had been ill just a week; but from the first the disease assumed a serious character, and his physician gave little encouragement. He grew steadily worse from the beginning, and was conscious to the last.

The following resolutions were adopted at a meeting held in the Municipal Court-room on Feb. 2, 1891:—

Resolved, That the members of the Suffolk bar desire to express in a solemn and public manner their sense of the great loss which it and the country have sustained by the death of the late Judge Benjamin R. Curtis. His steadfast and conscientious devotion to his important duties, his able, just, and discriminating mind, his kind and gentle nature, attracted public attention to him very soon after the commencement of his judicial life. The sense of loss is increased by the fact that he has been suddenly taken from us in early manhood, when there was a prospect that many years of an honorable and useful life would be devoted to the public service.

Resolved, That the bar found in Judge Curtis "that absolute judicial impartiality which can exist only when a tender and righteous conscience is joined to an instructed and self-reliant intellect."

On Oct. 24, 1877, Curtis was married at Cambridge to Mary Gardiner Horsford, who died at Geneva, Switzerland, July 9, 1893. He left three children: Benjamin Robbins, born at Plymouth, Mass., Aug. 13, 1878, (Harvard 1898, died in Paris, France, Aug. 26, 1905); Mary Gardiner, born at Plymouth, July 5, 1879; and Helena Pelham, born in Boston, Oct. 3, 1880.

WALTER SALISBURY CUTLER. Son of Martin L. and Maria A. (Salisbury) Cutler, born in Albany, N.Y., Oct. 14, 1853. Fitted for college at Phillips Academy, Exeter. After leaving college, began the study of law, and in 1876-77 was at Harvard Law School. In 1877-78 was at Albany Law School, receiving degree of LL.B. In May, 1878, was admitted to the bar in Albany, N.Y., practised law there for a short time, and then went into business. Moved to Denver, Col., in 1891, and to California in 1895, where he has lived since, with the exception of a year and a half (1900-1901) at Portland, Ore., and Seattle, Wash. Is now at Los Angeles, Cal.

Married at Albany, April 29, 1891, to Ella Van Zandt.

JAMES DANA. Son of James and Julia (Hurd) Dana, born at Charlestown, Mass., Nov. 5, 1853. Fitted for college at Boston Latin School. After graduation taught school for two years. Has been in employ of the Dock Department of New York City, the New England Trust Company in Boston, and the Barber Asphalt Paving Company in several cities. Is now in employ of American District Telegraph Company in Boston, and resides in Brookline.

*JOHN BRAZER DRAPER. Son of John Waite and Mary Chandler (Brazier) Draper, born in Dorchester, Mass., Nov. 28, 1853. Fitted for college at the Roxbury Latin School. After graduation he entered the General Theological School in New York City, where he was graduated in May, 1879; ordained deacon, June 8, 1879; ordained priest in Petersburg, Ill., April 25, 1880. He was in charge of Trinity Church, Petersburg, for four years; of Zion Church, Freeport, Ill., for two years; and in June, 1886, took the chaplaincy of Kemper Hall, Wisconsin, with Sunday duties at St. Matthew's Church, Kenosha, Wis. He died of pneumonia, after but three days illness, at Kenosha, Wis., Jan. 24, 1887.

He married, Nov. 9, 1880, at Pottsville, Penn., Caroline Gertrude Carpenter, who with two children, Mary Chandler (born at Petersburg, Ill., Sept. 30, 1881) and Eliza Adelaide (born at Freeport, Ill., Oct. 12, 1884), survived him.

*FRANCIS DUMARESQ. Son of Captain Philip and Margaretta (DeBlois) Dumaresq, born at Roxbury, Mass., July 19, 1854. He fitted for Harvard at the Boston Latin School, and, after graduation and a year of travel abroad, engaged in business in Boston, being at the time of his death a member of the firm of DeFord & Co. The firm dealt in raw sugars, and on the accession of Porto Rico to the United States it entered upon the production of raw sugar in the island by establishing a large plantation and building a central for extracting the sugar from the cane grown in the plantation and the surrounding country. It also opened banking offices in San Juan and Ponce, and was appointed Fiscal Agent of the United States in the island.

He submitted to a surgical operation in October, 1901, at a time when he was very much run down in health. The operation, as such, was successful, but could not, as proved by later developments, reach the seat of his disease. He gradually failed, but without experiencing much physical suffering, until he died at Brookline, Mass., Feb. 23, 1902. A window in his memory was erected in 1905, in the chancel of the Episcopal church in San Juan, Porto Rico, by his classmates and other friends.

 CHARLES HENRY DYER. Son of Quincy and Josephine Bonaparte (Soule) Dyer, born in Boston, March 3, 1852. He received his early education at the Boston public schools. During his first year at the English High School he met with a painful accident while at play, which kept him out of school for the whole of one year. When his health allowed, he returned to the school, and was graduated in 1870.

Up to this time he had not been decided in his intention to go to college; but, becoming more and more satisfied of the great advantages of a thorough education, he took a tutor in the fall of 1870, and spent a year in assiduous study, entering with the class in 1871. His course in college was checked by his delicate health and the continual injunctions of his physician to be very careful not to study beyond his strength. Notwithstanding this he held a high rank. His illness took him from college many weeks before graduation, so that he could attend none of the final exercises. He died of consumption at Hyde Park, Mass., Nov. 10, 1875. While in college, he was a member of the Everett Athenæum, Pi Eta, and Phi Beta Kappa Societies.

FRANK HERBERT EATON. Son of William and Anna Augusta Willoughby (Hamilton) Eaton, born at Kentville, N.S., July 29, 1851. Entered Acadia College, at Wolfville, N.S., in June, 1869, and graduated in 1873. He was principal of the academy at Shelburne, N.S., until November, 1873, when he joined the class of 1876 at Harvard, and shortly afterwards our class.

Immediately after graduation was appointed Instructor of Greek and Natural Sciences in Horton Collegiate Academy, Wolfville, N.S., which position he held for two years. In June, 1876, received degree of A.M. from Acadia College, N.S. In September, 1877, went to Cambridge, where he spent the year studying comparative philology. Was appointed principal of Amherst Academy, Amherst, N.S., in November, 1878, and held that position until his appointment to the chair of mathematics in the Nova Scotia Normal School, Truro, which he resigned in 1890. Passed six months in Europe in 1890, studying the educational systems of Great Britain and Germany. In 1883 published a book entitled "Elementary Practical Mathematics for High Schools, including the Rudiments of Trigonometry, Navigation, Mensuration, and Dynamics, with the Use of Logarithms."

In 1891-92 held temporary appointments as Instructor of Mathematics in the Boston Latin School and in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. From January, 1893, owned and edited two weekly papers in Kentville, N.S., the Advertiser and the Acadian Orchardist; and concurrently, from April, 1893, was Municipal Clerk and Treasurer of that town and Commissioner of the Supreme and County Courts, under appointment of the Provincial Government of Nova Scotia. Was for many years one of the governors of Acadia University and a member of the Senate of McMaster University, Toronto. In August, 1897, was appointed Superintendent of Schools of the city of Victoria, British Columbia, which position he now holds. Is a member of the Provincial Board of High School and Teachers' Certificate Examiners. Received the degree D.C.L. from Acadia University, Nova Scotia, in June, 1905.

* EDWARD PEARSON ELLIOT. Son of Matthew P. and Abby (Adams) Elliot, born in Boston, March 1, 1856. Fitted for college at Somerville High School. After graduation taught school in Worcester, Mass., and later was for a year in the bookstore of Estes & Lauriat in Boston. Entered the Harvard Medical School in 1877, and received the degree of M.D. in 1882. From 1881 to 1883 was Externe and House Officer at Boston City Hospital. In 1883 and 1884 studied medicine at Vienna, Leipzig, Berlin, and Dresden. Spent the year 1885 in travel, chiefly in Java and Japan. On his return he was appointed Assistant Physician at the State Lunatic Hospital, Danvers, Mass., and in June, 1886, was promoted to position of First Assistant Physician, which he occupied at the time of his death.

Died at Danvers, Mass., Jan. 11, 1897, of inflammation of the pancreas. His illness was brief, but very severe.

ARTHUR BLAKE ELLIS. Son of Rev. Rufus and Gertrude Louisa (Blake) Ellis, born in Boston, July 24, 1854. Fitted for college at the Boston Latin School. Received degree of LL.B. at Harvard Law School in 1877, and was admitted to the bar of Suffolk County, Massachusetts, in 1879. Practised law in Boston for about ten years, then abandoned the profession and became engaged in the care of trust property and literary pursuits. In 1887 was chosen Clerk and Treasurer of the Improved Dwellings Association, and in 1890 Clerk and Treasurer of the First Church in Boston. Has published a History of the First Church in Boston and a Memoir of Rufus Ellis. In 1882 was chosen a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society. In 1888 and 1889 was a member of the Examining Committee of the Boston Public Library.

In 1895 entered the Harvard Divinity School, from which he graduated in 1898, with the degree of S.T.B.

Ordained as a Unitarian Congregationalist minister Nov. 5, 1899, in First Church at Boston. From 1898 to 1905 has resided on the Pacific Coast, during the latter part of 1898 and the first half of 1899 at San Francisco, as a "Settlement Worker" in that city. Since June, 1899, he has lived at a co-operative colony at Burley, on Puget Sound, Washington, about fourteen miles distant from Tacoma. For the last five years, although not a settled minister, has preached regularly nearly every Sunday, both at the colony and at neighboring places, occasionally being called upon for christenings, weddings and funerals.

From September, 1903, to September, 1904, had a lease of "The Co-operative Brotherhood Industries" at Burley. The Brotherhood has been in existence over six years. It began as a socialist colony endeavoring to establish, more or less, community of ownership and equal daily pay for all kinds of work; recently the original plans of the founders have been practically abandoned.

In 1903, owing to his removal from the State, he resigned his resident membership in the Massachusetts Historical Society, and was elected a corresponding member.

ELLIUS ALBERT EMERSON. Son of Albert and Sarah A. (Greenough) Emerson, born in Haverhill, Mass., Sept. 1, 1853. Fitted for college at Haverhill High School.

After graduation took post-graduate course at Harvard for the first half-year. Has taught in the high schools at Lawrence, Wilmington, Groveland, and Haverhill. For the greater part of the time since 1877 has been engaged in farming at Haverhill, and is now engaged in the production and sale of milk and fruit. Has been a member of and has held offices in numerous agricultural societies, and has been a member of the School Committee of Haverhill.

Married at Haverhill, Dec. 24, 1881, Aurella Anna Gardner, of Salem, N.H. Has six children, all born at Haverhill: Albert Gardner, born March 4, 1883; Ethel Adelaide, Jan. 20, 1885; Samuel Everett, Jan. 17, 1886; Theodore Harrison, Sept. 21, 1888; Lizzie Sarah, Nov. 23, 1889; and Horace Ellius, born March 15, 1893.

 WILLIAM CARROLL EMERSON. Son of Charles and Celenda (George) Emerson, born at Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 15, 1853. Fitted for college at Haverhill High School.

Received degree of M.D. at Harvard Medical School in 1880, after serving as House Officer at Boston City Hospital for eighteen months. From January, 1881, until his death, he was Assistant Instructor in Chemistry at the Harvard Medical School; and he practised medicine in Boston until shortly before his death.

He was prominent in Masonic matters, being a member of the Mt. Lebanon Lodge, St. Andrew's Chapter, Boston Commandery of Knights Templar, Aleppo Temple of the Mystic Shrine, and Massachusetts Consistory of Scottish Rite Masons.

Died of diabetes at Haverhill, Mass., Oct. 8, 1891.

 GORHAM PALFREY FAUCON. Son of Captain Edward Horatio and Martha Williams (Weld) Faucon, born in Boston, Jan. 10, 1854. Fitted for college at Boston Latin School. On graduating, entered the Lawrence Scientific School, and received the degree of C.E. in 1877. In 1876-77 was President of University Football Club. He spent three years in Germany, studying mining engineering two years at Freiberg in Saxony, and civil engineering one year at Berlin. Returned in October, 1880, and from March, 1881, till May, 1882, was in the employ of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy R.R. Co., in the engineering department of the Iowa Division. Then entered the track department, where he remained until October, 1883, with the exception of four months during the winter of 1882-83, when he was clerk in the local freight office at Burlington, Ia. He resigned to become Assistant Master of Maintenance of Way on the Boston & Maine R.R., with headquarters at Lawrence, Mass., remaining until the end of February, 1885, when the position was abolished in consequence of a reduction of force. In May, 1885, he entered the engineering department of the Burlington & Missouri River R.R. in Nebraska, as Assistant Division Engineer. From August, 1885, until January, 1886, he was Assistant Roadmaster; January to November, 1886, draughtsman and transitman in the engineering department. In November, 1886, entered the office of the Superintendent of the Northern Division of the Burlington & Missouri River R.R. as chief clerk, and remained there until April 1, 1890, when he was given charge of the entire passenger equipment of that road, reporting to the General Superintendent, with headquarters at Lincoln, Neb. He returned to Milton in the spring of 1896, and for some time after was associated with our classmate Silsbee in auditing the accounts of the Cochecho Mills.

He died at Milton, Mass., May 21, 1897. He had been more or less subject to violent attacks of pain ever since he left college, but had never paid any serious attention to them. In the spring of that year, however, they became more pronounced and painful; and early in May he consulted our classmate, Dr. Francis S. Watson, who at once ordered him to the City Hospital, where an operation was performed about May 10. The shock was more than his system could bear, and on May 21 he succumbed.

* THOMAS CARY FELTON. Son of Cornelius Conway (President of Harvard College) and Mary Louise (Cary) Felton, born at Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 15, 1855. After graduation he engaged in stock farming in Virginia, in work at the Astor Library in New York City, from December, 1878, to July, 1879, and more recently in the collection of works of art in Europe.

He was taken seriously ill on his way home from California, and died at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, April 13, 1898.

WILLIAM SILSBEE FENOLLOSA. Son of Manuel Francisco Ciriaco and Mary (Silsbee) Fenollosa, born at Salem, Mass., Dec. 3, 1854. Fitted for college at Salem High School. Spent one year at Cambridge after graduation, studying theory of music with Professor Paine, receiving degree of A.M. in 1876. In 1879 was appointed to take Professor Paine's classes for a few weeks while he was in Europe. Since then has been engaged in pianoforte teaching as a profession, and has appeared in public as a concert-player, from time to time, in Boston and Salem. Resided in Boston until his marriage in 1887, when he returned to Salem, but has still continued teaching in Boston.

In 1898 received the appointment of conductor of the Salem Oratorio Society, to succeed Mr. Carl Zerrahn. For the last twelve years he has devoted a portion of his time to giving lessons in whist and bridge in Boston. Was one of the teams of the American Whist Club of Boston who won the National Championship at the National Whist Congress held at Boston in July, 1898.

For the last ten years has been interested in Christian Science, and at present is occupying the position of First Reader in the Christian Science Church in Salem.

Married at Salem, Mass., June 7, 1887, to Martha Webster Fabens.

JESSE WALTER FEWKES. Son of Jesse and Susan Emeline (Jewett) Fewkes, born in Newton, Mass., Nov. 7, 1850. Fitted for college at Newton High School.

Took post-graduate course, receiving the degrees of A.M. and Ph.D. in Natural History in 1877. Was a student at the Agassiz School, at Penikese. From 1878 to 1880 studied zoölogy at Leipzig, Naples, and Villa Franca, under the Harris Fellowship. From 1880 to 1889 was Assistant in the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy at Harvard, engaged in biological research, and from 1884 to 1887 was Assistant in Charge of the Newport Marine Laboratory during the summer months. In 1881 made a scientific trip with Mr. Alexander Agassiz to Key West and the Tortugas Islands, and in 1883 visited the Bermuda Islands.

In the spring of 1887 went to Southern California with Hemenway, and carried on scientific studies at Santa Barbara, Santa Cruz, and Monterey. During the summer of 1888 was at Professor Lacaze Duthier's zoölogical station at Roscoff, in Brittany, and passed the summers of 1889 and 1890 in Zuñi Pueblo, N.M.

In 1891 he became deeply interested in primitive religion, and for four years was engaged in studies of the ritual of the Moki Indians, in the employ of the late Mrs. Mary Hemenway, of Boston. In order better to appreciate Indian mythology and ritual, he acquired their language, and was initiated into one of the priesthoods of the Moki tribe. He has witnessed and described for the first time many secret ceremonies of this tribe. While connected with the Hemenway Expedition, he gathered in Arizona a collection of Pueblo Indian objects, which, numbering several thousand specimens, is now on exhibition in the Peabody Museum at Cambridge.

In 1892-93 he represented the Hemenway Expedition in the Historical Exposition at Madrid, Spain. He was recognized by the Spanish government as one of the United States delegation, and was a member of the jury of awards.

He was invited in the summer of 1895 to conduct archaeological exploration in Arizona for the Smithsonian Institution, and in that year and the two following made one of the largest collections of prehistoric pottery ever obtained in the Territory. The more striking specimens of this collection are now installed in the National Museum at Washington.

Spent the winters of 1901-03 in the West Indies, and the past winter, 1904-05, in the State of Vera Cruz, engaged in archæological studies for the Smithsonian.

In 1893 was honored by Maria Cristina, Queen Regent of Spain, with the decoration, "Isabel la Catolica," grade of knight; and in 1894 received from King Oscar of Sweden a gold medal, "Litteris et Artibus," for discoveries in anthropology.

He is a Fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences; corresponding member of the Essex Institute, Royal Anthropological Society, Florence, Italy, Berlin Society of Anthropology, and Sociedad Antonio Alzarte, Mexico. He is a member of the Boston Society of Natural History, of which he was secretary for several years, Naturalists' Society, Vice-President of Anthropological Society of Washington, member of Archæological Institute of America, American Anthropological Association; associate editor, American Anthropologist and Bulletin of the American Geographical Society; and in 1900 was Vice-President, Section H, American Association for Advancement of Science. Was editor of the Journal of American Ethnology and Archæology, of which four volumes were published. Has been for several years one of the committee appointed by the Overseers to visit the Peabody Museum at Cambridge.

He has written many articles on marine zoölogy, which were published in the Bulletins of the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy, the Essex Institute, and the Proceedings of the Boston Society of Natural History. His anthropological writings may be found in the Archiv Internationales für Ethnologie, Leiden, Holland, the American Anthropologist, Folk Lore Journal, Journal of American Ethnology and Archæology, and various reports of the Smithsonian Institution and Bureau of Ethnology.

Married at Cambridge, Oct. 8, 1883, to Florence Gorges Eastman, who died at Cambridge, May 3, 1888. Married at Roxbury, April 14, 1893, to Harriet Cutler.

FREDERICK PERRY FISH. Son of Captain Frederick Livermore and Mary Jarvis (Perry) Fish, born at Taunton, Mass., Jan. 13, 1855. Fitted for college at the Taunton High School. Married in Boston, April 2, 1892, to Rose Lee. Reginald was born March 18, 1894.

*WILLIAM McCRILLIS GRISWOLD. Son of Rufus Wilmot and Harriet Stanley (McCrillis) Griswold, born at Bangor, Me., Oct. 9, 1853. Fitted for college at Phillips Academy, Exeter.

Immediately after graduating Griswold spent several years in Europe, and there mastered foreign tongues in a characteristic way. Day after day, and aloof from men, he practised writing translations from French or German periodicals till he reached the proficiency he desired. During this sojourn there promised to be an opening for him to the world; under a nom de plume he wrote with considerable frequency for the Sunday issues of the Boston papers and for our leading magazines. These contributions, sometimes illustrated, were of easy transient interest, and he seemed fairly well started as an author in this way. However, only such contributions as he sent from Europe, and none sent by him after his return home, were accepted by the monthlies; even those from abroad accepted and paid for, but not published before his return, have never seen the light. Thereafter he wrote anonymously, chiefly for the Nation, but this, and his having charge for several years of the copyright department in the Library of Congress, and later a position in the State Department, were merely incidental to the work which filled the rest of his lifetime. This work was, to be sure, eccentric. It was disinterested in that it was without hope of any fitting financial return and without hope of general appreciation. It will, however, long remain an unrivalled boon, at least to editors and journalists. With unflagging industry in the line of his ambition where no one cared to compete with him, and in contented (perhaps unconscious and unenvious) isolation, without previous consultation with and without assurance of support from his beneficiaries, he produced the Q. P. (quarterly periodical) Indexes.

The following is a summary of his work:—

Index to the Nation (1865–85), to the Nouvelle Revue, Revue des Deux Mondes, Nineteenth Century, Fortnightly, Contemporary, International and North American Reviews, Deutsche Rundschau, Atlantic Monthly, Lippincott's, Eclectic, Littell's Living Age, and Scribner's (first 22 vols.); "A Record of Politics and Politicians in the United States (1865–1882)"; a series of annual indexes, also of Cumulative Indexes, including one to Harper's Weekly (1857–87); a "Directory of Authors, including Writers for Literary Magazines"; and another of writers for the literary press in the United States.

He then put forth condensations and terse descriptions (a difficult task, requiring more intellect than the making of indexes, and singularly well done) of "Novels and Tales," illustrating city life and country life in North America, also dealing with life in Russia, Norway, France, Germany, and Italy. He dealt in the same way with "Romantic Novels," "International Novels," and "British Novels." He then published compilations of "Travels," relating to France, Germany, and Switzerland, intended in effect to be guide-books in which the charm of the original books of travel had been retained. There are numerous other earlier ventures in published compilations which cannot be named for lack of space.

His last and quite recent publication was from the correspondence and papers of his father, Rufus W. Griswold. The father's memory, especially in his conduct towards Edgar Allan Poe, is still subject to harsh assaults by the latter's friends. Our classmate, however, holds his way manfully through these complications. The book, by his frankness and unreserved truth, reflects only credit upon the son, and, as the Nation says, is a very important landmark in our literary history which no public library can afford to be without.

He had never been robust, and in the summer of 1898 his ailment was diagnosed as pernicious anæmia. He died at his summer home at Seal Harbor, Island of Mount Desert, Me., Aug. 3, 1899.

A memorial of Griswold prepared by T. F. Taylor, from which most of the foregoing has been taken, was distributed to the class at the time of his decease, and an appreciative notice of his life and work appeared in the Nation of Aug. 23, 1899.

Married at Bangor, Me., Sept. 14, 1882, to Anne Deering Merrill. Margaret was born at Bangor, Me., Dec. 14, 1884; Merrill, at Washington, D.C., July 15, 1886, (in class of 1907 at Harvard); and Roger and Anna, born at Cambridge, Mass., May 9, 1892.

FRANCIS BARTON GUMMERE. Son of Samuel James (President of Haverford College) and Elizabeth H. (Barton) Gummere, born at Burlington, N.J., March 6, 1855. Graduated at Haverford College, Pa., July 10, 1872, receiving degree of A.B., and then engaged in business. Afterwards studied law in Philadelphia, and in September, 1874, joined our class at Harvard. Received degree of A.M. from Haverford College in 1875. 1875-79, teacher of English and German in the Friends' School, Providence, R.I. Twice absent studying in Europe, first for eleven weeks (summer 1876), and secondly for eight months, June, 1878—March, 1879. November, 1879, resigned position, and studied at Leipzig, Strasburg, and Freiburg. Received degree of Ph.D. in January, 1881, at Freiburg,—thesis, "The Anglo-Saxon Metaphor." Returned home March, 1881. October, 1881—June, 1882, Instructor in English in Harvard College. Reappointed for next year, but resigned to take position of head master of the Swain Free School at New Bedford, Mass., a foundation of a former citizen of that place, but not yet organized for work. Organized the school, and remained in charge of it until June, 1887. Appointed Professor of English in Haverford College, with one year's leave of absence abroad. Resigned position at New Bedford, and spent July, 1887—September, 1888, with his family, abroad, first studying at Christiania, Norway, for two months, and then working regularly for the rest of the time at Berlin. Began work at Haverford College, Sept. 25, 1888, and is still engaged in his duties there.

Spent 1897-98 abroad, with family,—mainly in Oxford and in Rome. In June, 1904, went to Berkeley, Cal., to deliver a course of lectures in the summer session of the University of California. December, 1904, elected President of the Modern Language Association of America for 1905. Has published "Handbook of Poetics," Ginn & Co., Boston; "Germanic Origins" (1892), Scribner's, New York; "Old English Ballads" (1894), Ginn & Co.; "Merchant of Venice," edited, etc. (1896), Longmans, Green & Co., New York; "The Beginnings of Poetry" (1901), MacMillan Company, New York and London; articles in Child Memorial Volume of the Harvard Studies and Notes, in the Furnivall Presentation Volume called

"An Old English Miscellany," in Modern Philology, Atlantic Monthly, and other magazines and reviews. Read an official paper at St. Louis, 1904, "The Relation of English Literature to Other Sciences."

Married at Burlington, N.J., Sept. 14, 1882, to Amelia Smith Mott. Has three children: Richard Mott, born at Burlington, N.J., Aug. 3, 1883, (Haverford 1902, A.M. Harvard 1904); Samuel James, born at New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 16, 1885, (in the class of 1907 at Haverford); Francis Barton, born at Haverford College, Pa., Dec. 21, 1888.

*JOHN CHAPIN LANE. Eldest son of Jonathan Abbott and Sarah Delia (Clark) Lane, born in Boston, Nov. 8, 1852.

He entered the Boston Latin School in 1865, and was graduated in 1871, receiving a Franklin medal. He entered Harvard in 1871, and in college was a member of the Pi Eta and Phi Beta Kappa Societies, and received a detur, second-year honors in mathematics, and a disquisition at Commencement.

After graduation he studied law in the office of George W. Morse, in Boston, and at the Law School of Boston University, receiving the degree of LL.B. in 1876. He was admitted to the Suffolk bar in 1878, and practised in Boston until his death. For several years he was in partnership with Mr. Morse, under the firm name of Morse & Lane, with offices at 28 State Street. In 1879 he removed from Boston to Norwood. From March, 1880, till his death he was one of the trial justices for Norfolk County.

He took an active interest in politics as a Republican until 1884, and afterwards as a "Mugwump" and Democrat. He wrote to the Class Secretary in the summer of 1898 as follows:—

"I was chairman of the Norwood Democratic Town Committee for a number of years up to the campaign of 1896, when I resigned, immediately afterwards being chosen chairman of the Norwood 'Democratic National,' or gold Democratic, Town Committee, which position I have continued to hold since. In the fall of 1895 I was chosen a member of the Democratic State Committee to represent the Second Norfolk Senatorial District. Following the Chicago Convention, as I favored a gold standard and did not believe in the free coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one, was somewhat active in opposition to the silver sentiment on the Democratic State Committee; and, when it appeared that the majority of the Democratic caucuses in my district were not in sympathy with my position, I resigned from the State Committee.

"From the commencement of its organization under the name of the Sound Money Democracy of Massachusetts to the present time I have acted as Secretary of the 'Democratic National,' or gold Democratic, State Committee for this State; and in the summer of 1896 I attended as a delegate from Massachusetts the National Convention at Indianapolis, which nominated Palmer and Buckner, and acted as the secretary of the delegation; was also Secretary of the State Conventions of the same party in 1896-97. In the fall of 1896 I was chosen Vice-President of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Massachusetts, and was re-elected in 1897.

"In 1896 I was chosen Vice-President of the Norwood Business Association and Board of Trade, an organization of one hundred business men of the place, which holds monthly suppers and meetings, at which subjects of business interest are discussed. The following June I was elected President, and was at the same time selected to represent that organization upon the Massachusetts State Board of Trade as Vice-President. Upon the State Board of Trade I have been a member of the Committee on Taxation, and am also a member of a special committee on opening the Connecticut River to navigation.

"I have been chairman of the Trustees of the Norwood Public Library five years, and have been a member of that board for six years. At the town meeting in March, 1898, I was re-elected for three years more. In 1892 I was elected a member of the School Committee of the town of Norwood, and, after serving on the committee one year, was chosen chairman in 1894, but resigned this position at the end of the then current school year." He was deeply interested in the public schools of Norwood; and he originated the "Norwood medals" given by him annually since 1890 for merit and good scholarship, upon the same general plan as the Franklin medals of Boston.

"Am Director and Vice-President of the Allen-Lane Company, which carries on a commission business in woollen goods. Am also Director in three woollen mills: the Georges River Mills, at Warren, Me., the Devonshire Mills, at Manchester, N.H., and the Walker Mills, at East Wilton, Me. Jan. 26, 1889, I was chosen Clerk, Treasurer, and Director of the Newton Street Railway Company. I acted as Treasurer of this corporation during the period of the original construction of its electric line, during which time some $400,000 passed through my hands as Treasurer. May 13, 1891, I gave place to a successor as Treasurer; I am still clerk of this corporation, though I ceased to be a Director April 27, 1891.

"For the current year and last year I have been a member of the Music Committee of the First Congregational Church where I attend in Norwood. I am also a member of the Church Committee, and before the church and parish were consolidated was a member of the Parish Committee. I was admitted to membership in the church at Norwood a few years ago without giving up my membership in Union Church (Congregational) in Boston, of which I had been for a long time a member.

"In 1885 I became a member of Hebron Chapter of Freemasons. On Oct. 27, 1887, I became a member of Cyprus Commandery of Knights Templars, located at Hyde Park. Am also a member of Hyde Park 'Council.' In the Spring of 1896 I took what are called the Scottish Rite degrees at Boston, and became a member of Massachusetts Consistory, taking the thirty-second degree, April 24, 1896. I am also a member of Aleppo Temple of the Mystic Shrine, at Boston." He was also a member of the Royal Contentment Lodge of Odd Fellows (Norwood) and of the Manchester Unity of Odd Fellows (an English order).

On Nov. 2, 1898, Lane left his house in Norwood to take an early morning train for Boston. Thinking himself late, he ran part of the way to the station. He was taken severely ill on the cars, and, on arriving in Boston, went to his mother's house on Tremont Street. In two weeks he had recovered sufficiently to be driven to Norwood, and appeared improved by the change to his own home. A few days later trouble with the heart developed, and he failed steadily until his death, Nov. 20, 1898.

Married at Norwood, Sept. 11, 1883, to Harriet Brewer Winslow, daughter of George S. Winslow.

ABBOTT LAWRENCE. Son of Abbott and Harriette White (Paige) Lawrence, born in Boston, Jan. 16, 1854. Fitted for college at Mr. Dixwell's private school in Boston.

While in college, he was a member of the Institute, O. K., Hasty Pudding Club, Porcellian Club, and was second marshal on Class Day. After graduation he studied at the Harvard Law School, and received the degree of LL.B. in 1877. In June, 1877, he started on a tour around the world. Sailing from San Francisco in September, he visited Japan, China, Java, India, and Egypt, and reached Europe in April, 1878. For about a year he lived in French and German families in Paris and Dresden, and returned to Boston in August, 1879. Was admitted to the Suffolk bar Sept. 15, 1879, and practised law in Boston until the fall of 1881. He was much interested in the State militia and in politics, serving on the staff of General Eben Sutton, of the Second Brigade, and as Secretary of the Republican State Convention at Worcester, in 1881. He was first taken ill in the autumn of 1881, but did not at once realize his serious condition. In January, 1882, he had frequent hemorrhages from the lungs, and with difficulty was taken to Nassau, New Providence, in the Bahamas, where he died March 15, 1882, at the age of twenty-eight years. In 1893 a fund of ten thousand dollars in memory of Lawrence was bequeathed by his father to the Social Law Library of Boston.

CHARLES FRANCIS LIGHTHIPE. Son of Charles Alexander and Sarah (Smith) Lighthipe, born at Orange, N.J., May 25, 1853. Fitted for college at Phillips Academy, Exeter.

After graduation studied law in Orange and at Columbia Law School, in New York City, receiving the degree of LL.B. in May, 1878. Admitted to the bar of New Jersey in June, 1878, and has since practised in Orange.

He has been counsel for the Orange National Bank, City Attorney for the city of Orange, Corporation Counsel of the city of Orange, counsel of the town of West Orange. He is a charter member of the Harvard Club of New Jersey, organized in March, 1904.

Married at Orange, N.J., April 20, 1881, to Effie Plumer Reed.

JOSEPH PERKINS LIVERMORE. Son of Rev. Leonard Jarvis and Mary Anne Catherine (Perkins) Livermore, born at Clinton, Mass., Feb. 19, 1855. Fitted for college at Cambridge High School.

After graduation studied at Lawrence Scientific School, receiving degree of C.E. in 1877. Taught as assistant at Lexington High School for the year 1877-78, then entered the office of Crosby & Gregory, patent solicitors, in Boston, and remained there until March, 1885. Since then has been in the same business for himself at 40 Water Street, Boston, until 1904, and afterwards at 110 State Street. A large part of his time is occupied in giving testimony as a mechanical expert witness in patent suits. Is a member of the University and Athletic Clubs of Boston, Oakley Country Club, Massachusetts Reform Club, and the Reform Club, Harvard Club, and National Arts Club of New York, and a life member of Harvard Union.

Married in Boston, Oct. 5, 1880, to Agnes Atherton Roberts. Has three children: Katherine Allina, born in Boston, June 29, 1881 (Radcliffe 1903); Lesley Roberts, born in Boston, Aug. 30, 1882 (Radcliffe 1904); and Gladys Hughes, born in Cambridge, Dec. 19, 1884.

CHARLES CHANDLER LORD. Son of Robert W. and Frances Caroline (Ward) Lord, born in Boston, April 25, 1855. Fitted for college at Boston Latin School, receiving a Franklin medal at his graduation in 1871.

While in college, he was a member of the Everett Athenæum, Signet, and Phi Beta Kappa Societies. After graduation he travelled and studied languages and fine arts in Germany, France, and Switzerland, returning to Boston in the fall of 1876. He soon went abroad again, and continued his studies of the fine arts during the whole of the year 1877. In December, 1877, he was taken ill with pleurisy at Munich, and, after remaining in a hospital there for six or eight weeks, went to San Remo, Italy, where he died April 6, 1878, and was buried in the English cemetery there.

WOODBURY LOWERY. Son of Archibald H. and Frances A. (Woodbury) Lowery, born in New York City, Feb. 17, 1853. Fitted for college at several schools in Europe and at Mr. Fay's school at Newport, R.I.

After graduation took a two years' post-graduate course at Harvard, receiving degree of A.M. in 1876. Went to his home in Washington, D.C., in 1877, and studied law at Columbian University, receiving the degree of LL.B. in 1880 and LL.M. in 1881. Was admitted to the bar of the District of Columbia Jan. 20, 1881, and to that of the Supreme Court of the United States Oct. 17, 1887. From December, 1881, until 1897 he practised patent law in Washington, and edited and published Myer's Federal Decisions, Vol. 24, on Patents, Lowery's Supreme Court Patent Reports, Vols. 4-20 of Brodix's American and English Patent Cases, Lowery's Annotated Interference Rules, and Lowery's Index Digest to the United States Supreme Court Patent Causes.

Of late years he has become interested in the history of the Spanish occupation of territory now included within the United States, and has spent eight months in Seville, Madrid, Paris, and London, conducting research among the archives in connection with this subject. He published in 1901 the first volume of "The Spanish Settlements within the Present Limits of the United States," covering the period extending from 1513 to 1562, and in 1905 the second volume, embracing the history of Florida from 1562 to 1574. His article entitled

"Jean Ribaut and Queen Elizabeth" was printed in Volume IX. of the American Historical Review. He is a member of the Metropolitan, University, and Harvard Clubs of Washington, of the Sons of the Revolution, and life member of the American Historical Association.

NATHAN MATTHEWS. Son of Nathan and Albertine (Bunker) Matthews, born in Boston, March 28, 1854. Fitted for college at Mr. Dixwell's school.

After graduation passed two years in Europe, part of the time at the University of Leipzig, and on his return, 1877, entered the Harvard Law School, remaining there until 1880; received the degree of LL.B. (out of course) as of 1880 at Commencement, 1893. He was admitted to the Suffolk bar in 1880, and has since practised in Boston, for the first two years in partnership with C. M. Barnes (Harvard 1877), then for several years alone, and since 1896 in partnership with William G. Thompson (Harvard 1888) and S. R. Spring (LL.B. Harvard 1897).

Has been active in State and city politics since 1886. Was one of the founders of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Massachusetts. Was President of the Democratic State Convention in 1889 and 1904; member of the Democratic State Committee from 1889 to 1896, serving during the entire period as chairman or member of the Executive Committee; in charge of State campaign of 1890 and subsequent years. Alice was born at Weston, Mass., June 23, 1878 (Vassar 1901), married at Waltham, Oct. 9, 1902, to Kilby Page Smith, and has two children, Kilby Page Smith, Jr., born Feb. 25, 1904, and Constance Cliffordier Smith, born Aug. 8, 1905; Cliffordier Eva was born at Weston, Oct. 11, 1882, and died there Dec. 18, 1882.

CLIFFORD MITCHELL. Son of Francis Macy and Ellen (Mitchell) Mitchell, born at Nantucket, Mass., Jan. 28, 1854. Fitted for college at Mr. Waters's school in Chicago, Ill., and Mr. Kendall's school at Cambridge. Took degree of M.D., April 3, 1878, at Chicago Homœopathic Medical College, and since then has practised medicine in Chicago. In 1878 was appointed House Physician and Demonstrator of Chemistry, in 1879 Lecturer, and in 1880 Professor of Chemistry and Toxicology of the Chicago Homœopathic Medical College. In 1880 he was one of the editors of the American Observer, a medical journal published in Detroit, Mich. Is a member of the Chicago Harvard Club and the Twentieth Century Club.

[1898] "Since the last report I have become Professor of Renal Diseases in the Chicago Homœopathic Medical College. Am one of the Vice-Presidents of the Harvard Club of Chicago for the current year.

"In 1893 I made what was said at that time to be the most rapid ascent of Pike's Peak on record,—three hours and thirty-five minutes' actual time on foot, from the Iron Springs Hotel to the summit, via the cog road. This intellectual achievement has won me more fame, I believe, than all my books put together."

[1905] In May, 1900, read a paper before the Illinois Homœopathic Medical Society, "Suicide by Carbolic Acid," calling attention to the comparatively large number of suicides by this agent, and beginning the agitation in favor of ordinance restricting sale to physician's prescriptions. Has written in all twelve books on medical subjects, and is active in contributing to medical journals and in reading papers before medical societies. In January, 1905, became head of the Department of Chemistry and Toxicology in Hahnemann Medical College and Hospital, Chicago, and also Professor of Renal Diseases in the same.

Married at Kansas City, Mo., May 31, 1878, to Susan Pearson Lillie, daughter of Rev. James Lillie, of Edinburgh, Scotland. She died May 8, 1901.

GEORGE HOWARD MONKS. Son of John P. and Delia S. (Hatton) Monks, born in South Boston, March 28, 1853. Fitted for college at Boston Latin School. RICHARD MONTAGUE. Son of Uriel and Jane (Stevens) Montague, born at Westborough, Mass., July 4, 1853. Fitted for college at Wilbraham Academy and Phillips Academy, Exeter. In college he was a member of the Everett Athenæum, O. K. (of which he was the President), Signet, and Phi Beta Kappa Societies, and received a detur, honors in philosophy, and a disquisition at Commencement, delivering his part at Commencement exercises. He was Chaplain on Class Day. After graduation was a private tutor for a year. Studied at the Harvard Divinity School in 1876-77, and at the Newton Theological Institution from 1877 to 1879, graduating there in June, 1879.

Oct. 3, 1879, he was ordained a minister of the gospel, and was pastor of the First Baptist Church at Lawrence, Mass., until September, 1881, and then of the Central Baptist Church at Providence, R.I., until October, 1886. In the summer of 1886 he was chosen one of the Preachers to the University, but failing health compelled him to resign before performing any service. In October, 1886, he removed for health's sake to Colorado Springs, Col., where he remained until November, 1893, when he accepted the pastorate of the First Baptist Church in Newton Centre, Mass. Received the honorary degree of D.D. from the University of Colorado, May, 1891.

He contributed to a considerable extent to religious papers and periodicals, and two volumes of his sermons have been printed.

Montague died at Newton Centre, Mass., July 24, 1895, of consumption, aged forty-two years.

Married at Cambridge, May 20, 1880, to Martha Peaseley Cogswell, who died at Colorado Springs, Col., Oct. 11, 1889. Sept. 11, 1893, he was married to Mabel W. Swett, of Brunswick, Me. He had two children: Richard, born Aug. 22, 1882, died in Providence, R.I., Feb. 15, 1902, while a student in Brown University; and Gertrude Alice, born June 4, 1884.

In October, 1902, was elected a resident member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, and in April, 1904, was chosen Cabinet-keeper and permanent member of the Council of the society.

JAMES SULLIVAN O'CALLAGHAN. Son of Peter and Margaret (O'Sullivan) O'Callaghan, born at Worcester, Mass., Nov. 16, 1853. Fitted for college at Milford (Mass.) High School.

He graduated cum laude, and with highest honors in philosophy,—a subject which interested him to an extraordinary degree ever afterwards up to the time of his death, and more and more from year to year. After graduation he studied at Cambridge for a year, and in 1876 entered the Harvard Law School, receiving the degree of LL.B. in 1878. He went to New York in the fall of that year, and was admitted to the New York bar in September, 1879. He was in practice in New York up to the time of his death, although some years prior thereto, on account of poor health, he withdrew from active practice, and since then his professional services were almost exclusively counsel work in the form of advice and consultations. He was very learned in the law, a thorough master of legal principles, and a clear and vigorous thinker along legal lines.

His health improved after his retirement from active practice, and his contentment and happiness in his mode of living may have had much to do with his gradual development into what, to all appearances, was a condition of perfect health. In the full vigor of his manhood he was stricken down in an instant in his own home, to which he had just a few minutes before returned from a walk, having about five or ten minutes before that conversed with acquaintances in his usual pleasant manner, giving no sign nor indication of any illness or unusual condition.

He died in New York City, Dec. 2, 1899. A memorial written by his brother, Daniel J. O'Callaghan (Harvard 1877), from which the foregoing has been taken, was sent to each member of the class at the time of his death.

EDMUND QUINCY SEWALL OSGOOD. Son of Rev. Joseph and Ellen Devereux (Sewall) Osgood, born in Cohasset, Mass., Feb. 26, 1851. He entered college with the class of 1874, but was obliged by ill-health to leave, and joined our class at the beginning of our Freshman year. After graduation studied at the Harvard Divinity School, receiving the degree of S.T.B. in 1878. He was ordained minister of the First Parish Church (Unitarian), Plymouth, Mass., Oct. 10, 1878, and remained there until Nov. 1, 1885, with the exception of fifteen months' absence abroad in 1881 and 1882.

In June, 1886, became minister of the Congregational Society (Unitarian) in Grafton, Mass., and remained there until November, 1890, when he removed to Hyde Park, Mass., and was installed as minister of the First Unitarian Society, November 20. While in Grafton, he was chairman of the School Committee for three years and chairman of the Trustees of the Public Library, and also Scribe of the Worcester Association of Ministers, and Secretary of the Worcester Sunday School Society.

Was minister of the First Unitarian Society in Hyde Park, Mass., from Nov. 20, 1890, to Nov. 25, 1894, when he resigned the position. During the next three years had no settled pastorate, but preached nearly every Sunday in some liberal pulpit, and on week-days spent a large part of the time in teaching. From September, 1895, to July, 1896, was a classical teacher in the Hyde Park High School; during the winter and spring of 1897 assisted C. W. Stone, '74, in his private school in Boston, and had many private pupils. In October, 1892, was chosen Secretary of the Norfolk Unitarian Conference, a position which he filled for the next five years. In September, 1897, he removed to Brattleboro, Vt., where on the 6th of October he was installed as minister over the Unitarian Congregational Society of that place, a position which he still holds. During the last seven years he has been a member of the Brattleboro School Board, serving at present as its chairman. Is also a member of the Professional Club, the leading literary organization among the men of the town.

Married at Cohasset, Mass., Sept. 23, 1879, to Mary Hobart Tower. Has two children: Ethel Lewis, born June 21, 1880; and Ronald Sewall, born Sept. 10, 1883,—both at Plymouth.

*THEODORE CLAUDIUS PEASE. Son of Claudius Buchanan and Elvira Ann (Smith) Pease, born at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Oct. 14, 1853. Fitted for college at Springfield (Mass.) High School. In college he was a member of the Everett Athenæum, O. K., Pi Eta, and Phi Beta Kappa Societies, was one of the editors of the Advocate, odist at the Sophomore Class supper, and poet on Class Day. He received a Lee prize for reading in Freshman year and a dissertation at Commencement.

After graduation taught two months in a private school in Springfield, and from February to June, 1876, at the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. Was at home for a year in poor health, and then entered the Andover Theological Seminary, graduating in 1880. Was ordained pastor of the Congregational church at West Lebanon, N.H., Sept. 8, 1880. Resigned his charge there in November, 1884, and was installed pastor of the First Church, Malden, Mass., Dec. 16, 1884. In 1891 he edited the second volume of "Speeches, Lectures, and Letters by Wendell Phillips," published by Lee & Shepard; and a memorial volume entitled "The Christian Ministry and Other Writings," with portrait and biographical sketch, was published soon after his death by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. In 1893 he received the honorary degree of A.M. from Dartmouth. In June, 1893, he became Bartlett Professor of Sacred Rhetoric and Pastoral Theology in Andover Theological Seminary, and was installed September 20. "Pease had gained an enviable reputation for scholarly culture, the brilliancy of his pulpit efforts, and his thorough devotion to his work. When he was elected to the Andover professorship, the fitness of the choice was at once recognized. He gave up the pulpit reluctantly and only in obedience to a high sense of duty, and had only just entered on the important duties of his professorship when his career suddenly closed. Possessed of a ripe culture, of scholarly tastes, brilliant in the pulpit and on the platform, strong in his convictions and in the courage of them, deeply interested in everything which goes to make up human life, a lover of books and also of men, Professor Pease had begun a career from which those who knew him best expected great things."

He died Nov. 19, 1893, at Andover, of typhoid fever after a short illness.

He was married at Somers, Ct., Aug. 25, 1880, to Abby Frances Cutter. Arthur Stanley was born at Somers, Ct., Sept. 22, 1881, (Harvard 1902, summa cum laude, A.M. 1903, Ph.D. 1905); Claudius Robert and Theodore Lawrence were born at Malden, Mass., June 16, 1887, the former died the same day, the latter died Oct. 8, 1887; Harold Edward was born at Malden, Dec. 16, 1888, and died Jan. 17, 1889; Philip Sidney was born at Malden, April 29, 1891, and died there the same year.

*EDWARD MILES PERRY. Son of Eben and Josephine (Miles) Perry, born in New Bedford, Mass., June 16, 1853. Fitted for college, at the Friends' Academy, New Bedford. While in college was a member of the Institute and Hasty Pudding Club. He began the study of medicine in London, England, September, 1875, and took the degree of M.R.C.V.S. (Member Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons) on April 1, 1878.

He died in New Bedford, Mass., July 27, 1885, from the bursting of a blood-vessel in the brain, after exposure to the sun.

WILLIAM BIGELOW PHELPS. Son of William Bigelow and Sarah A. (Kingman) Phelps, born at Boston, May 16, 1852. Fitted for college at English High School, Boston, and with private tutor.

Was employed as book-keeper for several years by C. W. Woodward & Co., of Boston. Has been much interested in musical matters, and a member of the choir at the Church of the Advent in Boston. Resides in Dorchester.

Married at Boston, June 30, 1892, to Emogene Howard.

Upon graduation taught four years at the Adams Academy, Quincy, Mass. Then studied at the universities of Bonn and Berlin for nearly two years. On his return was appointed tutor in Harvard College for six years, then made Assistant Professor of Latin and Greek. Resigned in December, 1888, and spent six months in European travel. Since his return has been living at Staten Island, and in 1891 and 1892 was in the real estate business in New York City. Has published "Handbook of Latin Writing" (with Mr. C. P. Parker), "Latin Lessons" (with Mr. L. C. Hull, of the Lawrenceville School in New Jersey), and a revised edition of Andrews and Stoddard's Latin Grammar, and has annotated two of the works of Terence; was one of the co-workers upon Foster's Encyclopædic Medical Dictionary, and has done other sporadic literary work. Is a member of the American Philological Society, and the Archæological Institute of America. For the last four years has been travelling abroad much of the time, and also doing translations of Latin works connected with the Swiss Reformation leader, Zwingli.

WILLIAM PITT PREBLE. Son of William Pitt and Harriet Tracy (Mussey) Preble, born in Portland, Me., Oct. 1, 1854. Fitted for college at Portland High School. ★ EDWARD EARLE. Son of Thomas and Alice (Chase) Earle, born in Worcester, Mass., Oct. 29, 1851. With the exception of a year or more spent in Europe with his father, his home was in Worcester until he entered college. Fitted for college at Worcester High School and at Mr. Kendall's school in Cambridge. While in college, he was a member of the Everett Athenæum and the Pi Eta. His health was always delicate, and soon after entrance it began to be a question whether he could finish the course. A hemorrhage during one of the vacations proved the necessity of a change in his life. He left college early in the spring of 1874, and lived with his mother in Salem. In May, 1874, went abroad, where he pursued his studies for some time, intending to rejoin the class at the beginning of Senior year; but his health did not permit. Returning in September, 1876, he began the study of law; but the state of his health again obliged him to desist. He then went to Bradford, Pa., where he purchased several oil wells, and engaged successfully in the business, also editing a newspaper. He died at Bradford, of typhoid fever, Oct. 16, 1879.

★ WILLIAM DANIEL ELLET. Son of Charles and Elvira (Daniel) Ellet, born at Richmond, Va., Aug. 4, 1854. Fitted for college at Norwood (Va.) School.

He was a member of the class until early in Sophomore year, when ill-health compelled him to discontinue his studies.

Returning strength allowed him to resume his work; and he re-entered college, completing his Sophomore year with the class of 1876. On Oct. 11, 1874, he sailed from Baltimore for Germany, and became a student at the University of Göttingen. He died at Göttingen, Nov. 20, 1874.

P. Ward & Co., bankers, of New York, with offices in several cities of the South and West.

★ JAMES MONTFORT WARD. Son of John Elliott and Olivia Buckminster (Sullivan) Ward, born at Richmond Hill, Liberty County, Ga., Oct. 5, 1854. He prepared for college mainly with private tutors, and left the class during Junior year. He studied law at the Columbia Law School, graduating in 1876, and for a few years practised law in New York. About the year 1881 he went to Savannah, Ga., and afterwards to Washington, D.C., where for about four years he had charge, during the first Cleveland administration, of the Law Department in the Pension Bureau. He found the department in a demoralized state, and remodelled it upon a system which is still in force.

About 1892 he entered the office of the Corporation Counsel of the City of New York, where he remained for about thirteen years, until his death. During the ten or fifteen years previous to his death he argued in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in the City of New York, and in its predecessor, the General Term of the Supreme Court, and in the Court of Appeals of the State of New York, nearly all of the important cases in matters of taxation in the office of the Tax Commissioners. He settled the law in many novel situations, and to a very large extent in a manner favorable to the interests of the city of New York. His ingenuity and resource in novel situations was remarkable, and he brought to the service of his client, the public, an amount of zeal and vigor that would have enabled him to accumulate a fortune if the work had been done for private corporations and individuals. His courage and unflinching determination to discharge his duty and keep up with his professional work, when he was borne down by weakness and suffering, was most extraordinary. It was this quality of indomitable perseverance and this exhibition of fortitude and discharge of duty under adverse circumstances that commanded the respect and admiration of all who knew him, even to a greater extent than was caused by their appreciation of his industry, ability, and learning.

About eight years before his death, Ward was stricken with tuberculosis. To benefit his health, he moved to Red Bank, N. J., where he lived for about six years. He continued to attend to his office duties (the latter part of the time at his home) until about January, 1904, when he went to a sanatorium for four months. His case having become hopeless, he returned to Red Bank, where he died about a month later, May 31, 1904.

In 1876 Ward married Agnes Sarmiento Biddle, of Philadelphia, Pa., who died at Morristown, N.J., in 1879, leaving one child, Agnes, who died shortly afterwards.

For his second wife he married Mariana Hull Johnston, of Baltimore, Md., Aug. 5, 1884. Their children were: John Elliot, born Sept. 4, 1885; Gertrude McIntosh (deceased), born Nov. 26, 1886; James Montfort (deceased), born Jan. 24, 1888; Frances Johnston, born June 10, 1889; Ruth Charlton, born May 21, 1891; Miriam Mansfield, born Aug. 11, 1892; Lachlan McIntosh, born Oct. 5, 1893; Mariana Hull, born Feb. 20, 1895; Richard Malcolm, born Aug. 10, 1896; Dwight Mansfield (deceased), born Dec. 31, 1897.

ATHLETICS.

It has been the custom to speak rather disparagingly of the record which the class made in athletics. While it cannot be said that '75 as a class was especially prominent in outdoor sports, the work of individuals, particularly in baseball and football, was noteworthy.

The following lists show who were members of the University Crew, of the baseball, and of the football teams, during the college course.

ATHLETIC GAMES.²

The deficiency of Harvard men in the contests at Saratoga in 1874 induced some of the members of '75 to start the Harvard Athletic Association in the fall of that year. Our classmate Curtis took an interest from the start, participating in two events, one at Saratoga and one on Jarvis Field. Sturgis was the winner in the half-mile race at the first outdoor meeting of the Association, at Cambridge, Oct. 24, 1874, and among the contestants were Bartlett, Bowditch, Curtis, and J. G. King.

CLASS MEETINGS.

At a meeting of the Class held June 26, 1900, the following vote was passed:—

Voted, That the Committee on Class Gate, appointed by the Class Committee, be requested to continue their work, and that they communicate with each member of the class, giving an opportunity to subscribe to the fund for the Class Gate, and that, if sufficient money is not obtained by subscription, the committee be authorized to draw on the Class Fund for an amount not exceeding two thousand dollars.

The resignation of Arthur B. Ellis as member of the Class Committee was received and accepted. Grenville H. Norcross was unanimously chosen a member of the Class Committee in his stead.

At a meeting of the Class held June 23, 1903, it was Voted, That the Class Committee and Secretary be requested to consider the matter of the ultimate disposition of the Class Fund, and report their recommendations as they may think best.

At the Class dinner, June 27, 1905, the Class Committee and Secretary reported their recommendation as to the ultimate disposition of the Class Fund, and it was Voted, That the Class Committee and Secretary be authorized to pay over the Class Fund to the Treasurer of the College, to be held in trust on the following terms: the income to be paid over annually to the Secretary, and the principal sum on the death of the last survivor of the class to be paid over to the College. A portion of the principal, not exceeding two thousand ($2,000) dollars in all, may be paid to the Secretary at his request.

The Class Committee and the Secretary have not as yet taken any steps under the authority granted them by this vote.

REPORTS OF THE CLASS GATE COMMITTEE.

I.

JULY 10, 1900.

TO THE CLASS OF 1875:

At the anniversary dinner on June 26 the matter of the proposed gift by the class of a gateway in the new college fence was brought forward and discussed.

There were more than sixty members of the class present. The proposition to build the gate was accepted and approved.

The following resolution was adopted:—

Voted, That the Committee on the Class Gate, appointed by the Class Committee, be requested to continue their work, and that they communicate with each member of the class, giving an opportunity to subscribe to the fund for the class gate, and that, if sufficient money is not obtained by subscription, the committee be authorized to draw on the Class Fund for an amount not exceeding $2,000.

You have already been informed, by a previous circular mailed to each member of the class, of the location and design of the gate. The design is reproduced on the opposite page. The estimated cost is four thousand seven hundred dollars. It is hoped and expected that the entire sum will be raised by subscriptions and without recourse to the Class Fund.

Your committee now report, and request subscriptions.

Subscriptions may be sent to Francis Shaw, Wayland, Mass.

For this purpose there is enclosed a card and envelope addressed. If cheque does not accompany the subscription, the committee will call on subscribers for payment later in the year, when the payments for the gate become due.

Kindly reply at your early convenience.

It is very much desired that an expression be had from each member of the class. The committee will take the liberty of considering the subscriptions closed on August 15, in order that it may be determined as soon as practicable whether the class funds are to be drawn on, and to what extent. If money obtained from subscriptions exceeds the sum required, pro rata return will be made to the subscribers.

FRANCIS SHAW,
FRANCIS R. APPLETON,
HENRY S. HUNNEWELL, Committee.

II.

The committee charged with the building of a gate to be presented to Harvard College, as a memorial of the class of 1875 on its twenty-fifth anniversary, is happy to report that the gate is virtually completed, and it is hoped that the inscriptions will be cut before Commencement Day. The estimated cost of the work was $4,700. An examination of the detailed statement on the inside page will show that your committee has been able to keep within that sum, although it was found necessary to incur an unexpected expense for extra foundations.

The committee wishes to express most grateful thanks for the very general and generous response to the request for subscriptions and for the prompt fulfilment of pledges, and is glad to report that the Class Fund has not been drawn on.

HARVARD COLLEGE TEACHERS' ENDOWMENT FUND.

I.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1875:

At a meeting attended by eighteen members of the class, subscriptions were opened to a class fund to be given to the Teachers' Endowment Fund of Harvard College, now being raised for the adequate support of the teaching force of the College. It was voted at the meeting to urge upon every member of the class to subscribe some amount to this most important and necessary purpose, and it was also the expressed sense of the meeting that all individual subscriptions from members of the class be grouped together and paid over to the Treasurer of the College in one sum in the name of "The Class of 1875," and that no record should be made or reported of the separate names of the donors. The undersigned were appointed a committee, one of them to act as treasurer, to receive subscriptions and to pay them in a lump sum to the College. Subscriptions have already been made by members of the class on the above terms, amounting to $51,225. All subscriptions are payable on or before June 20, 1905, or, if specified, in two equal payments, the first in June, 1905, and the second in June, 1906.

The grand total of the endowment to which the attention of all Harvard men is to be called is expected to be two and one half million dollars ($2,500,000). Bishop Lawrence, of Massachusetts, President of the Alumni Association, is chairman of the committee having the matter in charge.

Will you please state the amount of your subscription on the enclosed card, and mail to F. R. Appleton, Treasurer, No. 21 Maiden Lane, New York City?

APRIL 27, 1905.

HARVARD COLLEGE TEACHERS' ENDOWMENT.

The great gifts made to the University in recent years have been almost all for the professional schools and special purposes. Meanwhile the increasing number of students in the College has demanded a larger teaching staff and greater expenses. To-day the College is not only unable to pay its teaching force adequate salaries, but has been obliged to reduce both salaries and teachers, and is in danger of losing some of its most important men.

The primacy of Harvard University is due not so much to its age, traditions, and able administration as to its noble line of teachers.

The college salary list is as follows:—

57 Professors:

13	receive	$5,000
9	"	4,500
15	"	4,000
20	"	3,600 and less
	Average	3,980

38 Assistant Professors:

9	receive	$3,000
25	"	2,000
4	"	1,600 and less
	Average	2,130

88 Instructors:

1	receives	$2,000
29	"	1,750 to $1,100
33	"	1,000
25	"	925 and less
	Average	990

These, with the assistant lecturers, tutors, etc., make a staff of 279 teachers. Total salaries, $437,821. Average, $1,570.

To provide a more adequate income, Harvard asks of her sons and friends two and one-half million dollars ($2,500,000) as a permanent endowment, the income to be used for no other purpose than the support of the teaching force of the College.

II.

At a meeting of the President and Fellows of Harvard College, in Boston, March 13, 1905, it was Voted, That the thanks of the President and Fellows be sent to each giver towards the TEACHERS' ENDOWMENT FUND OF HARVARD COLLEGE, and that the name of each giver be entered in the Donation Book of the College.

Please accept the thanks of the President and Fellows for your gift of fifty-seven thousand four hundred and fifteen dollars.

Respectfully yours,

ALLEN DANFORTH, Comptroller.

CLASS OF 1875,

MR. FRANCIS R. APPLETON, Treasurer.

III.

Please accept the thanks of the President and Fellows for your gift of one hundred dollars, the fourth instalment on account of the subscription of the Class of 1875.

Respectfully yours,

HOWARD L. BLACKWELL, Comptroller.

CLASS OF 1875.

MR. FRANCIS R. APPLETON, Treasurer.

IV.

The Committee having the class subscription in charge report that the total amount subscribed by the Class to date is sixty-one thousand one hundred and seventy dollars, of which fifty-seven thousand five hundred and fifteen dollars has been paid in to the College Treasury. The remaining unpaid subscriptions, three thousand six hundred and fifty dollars, are due at next Commencement. The subscriptions have come from forty-five individuals, less than half the number on the class roll. This report will serve as a reminder to those who were unable to respond to the first circular.

The Endowment Fund, although a very large one, is none too large, and never will be large enough for the good it is possible to do in increasing and keeping at a proper high standard the salaries of teachers. A number of single subscriptions from members of the Class have not exceeded five dollars, and to the general fund subscriptions were in many cases one dollar. It is hoped, and much to be desired, that some response be had from each member of the Class, and that the total of our gift will reach seventy-five thousand dollars. The books may be kept open indefinitely!
